Analog to Digital Library Transformation: Issues, Challenges and Opportunities

March 24-26, 2022

About Department

The Department of Library and Information Science started in 1961 on the initiative of the then University Librarian Professor K.A. Isaac is the premier school of librarianship and information science in Kerala and one of the early teaching and research departments of the University of Kerala. Located in the Kerala University Library Building, presently the department offers M.L.I.Sc., M.Phil. and from 1982-83 department has been enrolling scholars for PhD and PDF from 2020. The Silver Jubilee of the department was celebrated in 1986.

About Conference

The COVID-19 pandemic has radically changed the hunting method of information. The implementation of Information and Communications Technology in the library system shows a high growth of seeking information through remote and digital platforms even before the pandemic. The librarian community needs to change themselves with the skills necessary for creating holistic information in the present innovative approach, particularly in this present context. This conference will bring together library professionals from all over the world to discuss the library's future and services that can benefit library users. This conference will concentrate on themes related to the transformation of library services in all areas. It has been found that most of the faculty members, research scholars and students are showing good interest to continue in using the state-of-the-art remote access facility provided in the post-covid-19. The present-day users are keenly interested to use electronic resources as compared to their counterpart print resources which save time for the user, are easy to use and availability/accessibility of a large range of information from 24x7, anywhere and anytime.
